Beijing | Fruit Tree

rmind behind ROOMbeijing, Chef Brian McKenna his fruit tree himself. It's a two-foot tree made out ire with chunks of seasonal fruits stuck on for a multicolored effect. The tree (¥200) is served on a ice, and the fruit is dipped into a number of tasty sugars. Try it at home: ROOM sells the trees in-the price is only available on request. Having one presses guests and encourages healthy desserts.

Beijing's Restaurants Get Quirky with Food Trees

By Sienna Parulis-Cook

Beijing restaurants have started livening up the dining experience with whimsical food trees. City Weekend takes a look at some of the city's most fruitful food foliage.
